1.1 INTRODUCTION

The Department of Sociology was established in 2012. The Sociology Department plays a vital role in fostering critical understanding of society by equipping students with analytical, research, and problem-solving skills essential for academic growth and responsible citizenship. The Department of Sociology at Mount Mary College offers a Bachelor of Arts (BA) in Sociology with FYUP 2020 Nagaland University as its Syllabus. With a dedicated team of faculty and a focus on holistic development, the department continuously strives to impart quality education while adapting to the evolving academic and professional landscapes.

Through its curriculum, field-based learning, and community-oriented activities, the department enhances students' awareness of social issues, promotes inclusivity, and contributes to holistic institutional development. By integrating theory with practice, it supports the college's vision of nurturing socially sensitive graduates who can contribute meaningfully to society and sustainable development

SWOT ANALYSIS

SWOT Analysis is a strategic planning tool used to identify and assess the Strengths, Weaknesses, Opportunities, and Threats related to a project, organization, or individual.

- Strengths refer to internal advantages or assets.
- Weaknesses are internal challenges or areas that need improvement.
- Opportunities are external factors that could be leveraged for growth or success.
- Threats are external risks or challenges that could negatively impact progress.

It helps in making informed decisions, setting realistic goals, and developing strategic plans by offering a clear snapshot of the current situation.

2.1 SWOT Analysis STRENGTH

- Integration of Real-Time Case Studies: The curriculum actively incorporates current and local case studies, enhancing students' analytical skills and practical understanding of sociological theories.
- Experienced and Qualified Faculty: The department is supported by a team of academically strong and field-experienced faculty, which ensures quality instruction and mentorship.
- Healthy Student-Teacher Ratio: A favourable student-teacher ratio promotes interactive learning, personalized attention, and stronger academic relationships between students and faculty.

2.2 SWOT Analysis WEAKNESS

- Limited Technological Integration in Teaching: While traditional methods are strong, the department lacks advanced digital tools such as smart boards, virtual simulations, and data analytics platforms which can modernize and enrich the learning experience.
- Insufficient Research Publications and Documentation: There is a low volume of faculty and student-led research outputs being published in reputed journals or presented in academic forums, which affects the academic visibility of the department.
- Minimal Industry and NGO Collaboration: The department currently has limited linkages with social research institutions, NGOs, or government bodies, which restricts hands-on exposure and field-based learning opportunities.

2.3 SWOT Analysis OPPORTUNITY

- Participation in National and State-Level Seminars and Workshops: Expanding engagement in academic events can enhance knowledge exchange, research exposure, and networking for both faculty and students.
- Field Research across Diverse Districts of Nagaland: Exploring the region's sociocultural diversity through immersive fieldwork can strengthen ethnographic understanding and contribute to community-based research.
- Collaboration through Inter-Department and Inter-College Activities: Engaging in collaborative academic, cultural, and social initiatives can foster interdisciplinary learning and broaden the student experience.

2.4 SWOT Analysis THREATS

- Rising Competition from Emerging Private Institutions: Private and autonomous institutions offering specialized programs in sociology and social sciences pose a challenge in terms of attracting students and faculty talent.
- Declining Interest in Core Social Science Disciplines: A societal shift toward STEM and professional courses may lead to reduced student enrollment and interest in sociology as a career path.
- Policy and Funding Constraints for Social Science Research: Limited governmental support and shrinking grants for humanities and social sciences could hinder research opportunities and departmental growth.

2.5 SWOT ANALYSIS CHART

STRENGTH	WEAKNESS
Academic Excellence, Holistic Learning, Critical Thinking, Imaginative Engagement, Experiential Education.	Traditional TLM, Limited Collaboration, Career Ambiguity, Declining Enrollment.
OPPORTUNITIES	THREATS
Institutional Collaboration, Workshops & Seminar, Internship Opportunities, Skill-Based Learning	Rising Competition, STEM Dominance, Enrollment Challenge.

3.5 MORE ACTIVITIES

In accordance with the Nagaland University syllabus, the Department undertakes the following academic activities:

3.5.1. Class Tests:

In addition to the scheduled internal assessments, monthly class tests are conducted to ensure continuous academic engagement and to monitor students' progress throughout the semester.

3.5.2. Student Presentations:

As a mandatory component of internal assessment under the University curriculum, all Honours and General students are required to deliver subject-specific presentations. Each student is assigned a topic relevant to the syllabus and is expected to present for approximately 10-15 minutes before the faculty and their peers. The primary objective of this exercise is to deepen the student's understanding of the subject matter while simultaneously enhancing their public speaking abilities and self-confidence.

3.5.3. Assignments:

Assignments are regularly given on topics aligned with the curriculum. Students are expected to conduct independent research and submit their work within the stipulated deadlines. This practice is aimed at fostering critical thinking and academic writing skills.

4. Future Plans: Visions

4.1 Future Vision 2025-2026

- To Expand Academic Exposure Beyond the Region: Organize seminars, conferences, workshops, and field visits beyond the Chümoukedima district to broaden students' academic and socio-cultural perspectives.
- To Enhance Academic Performance: Implement targeted academic interventions aimed at improving the overall pass percentage and academic excellence within the department.
- To Encourage Holistic Student Participation: Foster an inclusive environment where every student is encouraged and supported to actively engage in curricular, co-curricular, and extracurricular college activities.
- To Strengthen Blended Learning Approaches: Refine and optimize blended learning methodologies by effectively integrating digital tools with traditional teaching to improve learning outcomes.
- To Provide Academic Support for Underperforming Students: Allocate dedicated mentoring hours and remedial classes for academically weaker students to ensure personalized guidance and performance improvement.
